Services offered will be funded fully by student tuition, needless to say, this program will be highly beneficial to both the participants and the rainforest communities we service.

Participation:

Designed for pre-veterinary students in their undergraduate studies. Students will learn about veterinary medicine in a developing country. Along with locals vets, the class will be helping animals in need of medical attention and offer services to horses, cattle, dogs, cats and other animals. Course will cover basic clinical information about diagnostics and treatments including basic veterinary skills such as parasitological surveys, blood work, physical exams and more. Get hands-on experience.

Maderas Rainforest Conservancy is a 501 (c) (3) non profit Organization.
